CrowdStrike: Global IT Outage

The IT outage caused by a CrowdStrike Falcon content update continues to evolve on a daily basis. We view the incident as a black eye for the company to recover from, but expect the quality of response from the company will go a long way toward supporting the business and the brand longer term. Customers in the U.S. woke up on July 19th to news of an outage but also to a solution, a company that had been working toward recovery through the night, and an executive team that was able to marshal immediate support of IT leaders and Government agencies while maintaining a high level of transparency. The impact of the outage will be discussed for years, but we believe the company can emerge with a favorable reputation and an ability to take share as a best of breed platform vendor longer term. Near-term, we expect fundamental headwinds will include credits to customers under SLAs, delayed/slipped/lost business, costs related to business interruption/recovery at customers, and incentives offered to customers over the next year. The latest questions we've fielded from investors involve the extent of legal exposure CRWD could have but we continue to think exposure will be capped at thresholds in contracts and channel conversations so far indicate that vendors with better IT management practices seem to have fared better than expected.

Wiz’s $23bn Takeover News Shifts

The Wall Street Journal reported that talks between Google (covered by JPM analyst Doug Anmuth) and Wiz fell apart, with Wiz deciding to pursue an IPO instead. While we have no knowledge of a deal or conversations and in spite of the news that talks fell apart, we think the news bodes well for Security Software valuations due to the high implied valuation reported in the article. The company most recently completed $1bn of Series E funding on May 7, 2024, putting the company’s pre-money valuation at $11.9bn. (Wall Street Journal)

News Emerges of Tenable Takeover Interest

Bloomberg this week reported that Tenable hired an advisor after receiving takeover interest. We note that we have no knowledge of a deal at this point and have not seen a company comment regarding the transaction. TENB shares appreciated over 8.5% over the past 5 trading days. The company reported its 2Q24 earnings results last night.

IBM Estimates Average Cost of Data Breach Hit $4.9mm

The cost of a data breach increased by 10% y/y in 2024, averaging roughly $4.9mm according to IBM’s Cost of a Data Breach Report. The increase in costs is largely associated with the combination of business disruptions and post-breach customer support and remediation. Over 70% of breached organizations reported that the cyber attack caused a significant or very significant business disruption. More than half of the organizations are passing through these costs to their customers. Fighting AI with AI remains important for Security, with over 67% of organizations deploying AI for Security, an increase of 10% y/y. AI in Security is helping lower the time and cost of a potential cyber attack by approximately 98 days and $2.2mm, respectively, compared to those with no AI use in prevention workflows. In our opinion, vendors will continue to leverage AI for Security.

Zscaler Reports 18% y/y Growth in Ransomware

As of April 2024, ransomware surged by 18% y/y, according to the Zscaler ThreatLabz 2024 Ransomware Report. In 2023 ransomware payments exceeded $1bn, and a ransom payout by a single company reached more than double the highest publicly known ransom payment at $75mm. The energy sector experienced the highest increase in ransomware attempts, at 527% y/y. Geographically, the US, UK and Germany saw the largest increase in ransomware attacks over the past year, at 102%, 50% and 35%, respectively. Breaches (particularly high-profile ones such as UNH and Microsoft) are prompting increased interest and awareness around the importance of Security, lending support for Cybersecurity spend, in our opinion.

2023 OpenAI Breach

Earlier this month, it was revealed that OpenAI suffered a hack last year regarding details on the design of its AI technologies. The hack breached an online forum discussing the details of the company’s latest AI technologies, but not its AI core systems. Employees and OpenAI’s board of directors were told about the breach in April 2023. The news was not shared with law enforcement agencies, nor the public, as no known information pertaining to customers or partners had been stolen, and the company did not believe this breach was a state sponsored attack. The breach raises fear of potential future hacks from foreign adversaries, and the company has already prevented five covert influence operations aimed at using its models for deceptive activity this year.

2024 Voice of the CISO

CISOs continue to face heightened concerns as the threat landscape continues to evolve. Roughly 70% of CISOs feel at risk of experiencing a material cyber attack over the next year according to 2024 Voice of the CISO report. Most CISOs are aware of the potential risks, and a little under half view their organization unprepared to cope with a targeted cyber attack, showing an increasing disconnect between awareness and preparedness of an organization’s security posture. CISOs view ransomware, malware, email fraud and cloud account compromise as the leading threats over the next year. Ransomware rose to the top of the list in 2024. Consolidation remains a key priority for CISOs, as Security budgets remain tight in the current macro environment, and almost half (48%) of CISOs have been asked to cut staff, delay backfills or reduce spending. Enterprises still have a desire to consolidate the number of vendors they need to manage, and we think that the Security Software market remains ripe for consolidation, expecting best-of-bread platforms will continue to benefit across our coverage universe.

Performance and Valuation

Despite ongoing levels of elevated demand, we expect interest rates and macro uncertainty will remain primary factors that move multiples across our coverage universe (Figure 8). Security multiples have continued to improve relative to Software overall (ex-Security) over the past year. In our view, valuation levels reflect better than anticipated performance across our coverage over the last few quarters relative to lower expectations due to conservative commentary from management teams and expectations for interest rate cuts beginning at the end of 2024. We note that average multiples for Security stocks we follow tend to be more volatile than the Software stocks we track due to a higher concentration of high growth, high multiple stocks in the cohort.

Growth premium materializing for those with balanced growth. Companies that read the room properly have focused on balanced growth with better profitability and have realized stock price appreciation driven by both fundamentals and multiples YTD. The growth premium we saw in 2021 and 2022 had evaporated by the beginning of 2023 due in part to a rising rate environment and growing macro concerns. However, we have recently begun to see a return of the growth premium, particularly for stocks that can deliver balanced growth and profitability (Figure 10).

Consensus estimates remain reasonable. Security Software demand remains high and budgets are stable according to our industry conversations. Although elevated multiples still imply that buy-side bars are a little higher, consensus sell-side estimates remain reasonable in our view, and vendor commentary has driven consensus estimates lower for CY24. Consensus reflects lower revenue and billings growth expectations for CY24, which were revised lower by -1.2% and -2.4%, respectively, on average over the last year.

New Federal Contracts

Federal spending continues to be an area of importance for security names as the US government develops and upgrades its IT security standards, agencies, and infrastructure. We track new security contracts and dollar amounts for our covered companies, but note that new federal contracts (both volume and value) typically peak in the second and third quarters of the calendar year from the federal appropriations cycle and agency budget flush. Additionally, new contract awards can be lumpy and span multiple years. However, we view these contracts as a growing opportunity for security vendors as federal budgets are expected to continue to increase (Figure 16). We expect federal spending will remain elevated compared to discretionary spending growth overall.

Partnerships and Acquisitions

Security Software has historically been a sector in which a great deal of innovation occurs at the private company level. As a result, partnerships and acquisitions have also been meaningful. Cash conservation remains a focus considering the macro environment, but we continue to believe we will see meaningful consolidation and partnerships ahead. We have seen M&A activity pick up recently as multiples hover at more reasonable levels compared to recent years, and we expect to see more of this throughout 2024. Some recent financing rounds have been surprising but we have also seen a number of ‘down rounds,’ implying rationalization of valuation for some private companies.

Recent notable announced transactions this month:

- RPD acquisition of Noetic Cyber. Rapid announced on July 1st that it has signed an agreement to acquire Noetic Cyber. The acquisition will add CAASM (cyber asset attack surface management) capabilities to RPD’s security solutions and will help increase visibility across an organization’s cloud and on premise security posture. We think the acquisition of Noetic Cyber makes sense as ASM has become a relatively standard feature in the market. See our note for greater detail.
- CLBT acquisition of Cyber Technology Services. Cellebrite announced on July 17th that it has signed a definitive agreement to acquire Cyber Technology Services (CyTech) as well as officially establish Cellebrite Federal Solutions to better serve the US Federal sector. The acquisition will add CyTech’s professional services business in cybersecurity, forensics and incident response to the company’s new unit, Cellebrite Federal Solutions, expanding the company’s partnerships with US Federal customers and accelerating the company’s ability to participate in certain types of business, such as classified government business. See our note for greater detail.

Important Disclosures

Company-Specific Disclosures: Important disclosures, including price charts and credit opinion history tables, are available for compendium reports and all J.P. Morgan–covered companies, and certain non-covered companies, by visiting <https://www.jpmm.com/research/disclosures>, calling 1-800-477-0406, or e-mailing research.disclosure.inquiries@jpmorgan.com with your request.

Explanation of Equity Research Ratings, Designations and Analyst(s) Coverage Universe:

J.P. Morgan uses the following rating system: Overweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will outperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst’s, or the Research Analyst’s team’s, coverage universe); Neutral (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will perform in line with the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst’s, or the Research Analyst’s team’s, coverage universe); and Underweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst’s, or the Research Analyst’s team’s, coverage universe. NR is Not Rated. In this case, J.P. Morgan has removed the rating and, if applicable, the price target, for this stock because of either a lack of a sufficient fundamental basis or for legal, regulatory or policy reasons. The previous rating and, if applicable, the price target, no longer should be relied upon. An NR designation is not a recommendation or a rating. In our Asia (ex-Australia and ex-India) and U.K. small- and mid-cap Equity Research, each stock’s expected total return is compared to the expected total return of a benchmark country market index, not to those Research Analysts’ coverage universe. If it does not appear in the Important Disclosures section of this report, the certifying Research Analyst’s coverage universe can be found on J.P. Morgan’s Research website, <https://www.jpmorganmarkets.com>.

Coverage Universe: Essex, Brian: CS Disco (LAW), Cellebrite (CLBT), Check Point Software (CHKP), CrowdStrike (CRWD), CyberArk (CYBR), Fortinet (FTNT), International Business Machines (IBM), N-able (NABL), Okta (OKTA), Palo Alto Networks (PANW), Qualys (QLYS), Rapid7 (RPD), SentinelOne (S), Tenable (TENB), Varonis (VRNS), Zscaler (ZS)
